Fantasy Rank

Film Notes:

Electric body type, ability to come in year one and contribute due to physical upside and deep ball ability(60+) in the air. Richardson just struggles in the middle quadrants, and on the run. NFL training through the combine should help his progression.

Richardson tends to hold on to the ball too long on 3rd down, waiting for the perfect opportunity, just needs to "send it" instead of depending on the run/check-down. This is a cause for lack in completion percentage.

Bio

Used almost exclusively as a "weapon" in 2021 while playing with Emory Jones at Florida. Richardson was named to the freshman All-SEC Team after completing just 38 pass attempts, but passing is not what Anthony Richardson is best known for. In week 1 against Florida Atlantic, Richardson took 7 rush attempts for 160 yards and a touchdown... by the end of the season, he compiled 401 yards on the ground with just 51 attempts.

In 2022, Richardson was given the keys to the offense at Florida, and despite his completion percentage dropping to 53% he still threw for 2,549 yards and 17 touchdowns, this caused my evaluators to attempt to push Richardson back to College in 2023. But after racking up over 650 yards on the ground and 9 touchdowns, it should have been obvious - Richardson is built for the current age of the NFL. With the highest upside among quarterback prospects in the 2023 class, Richardson looks to follow in the steps of other rushing quarterbacks like Cam Newton, Justin Fields, Lamar Jackson and Jalen Hurts.

Film Notes:

Stroud has all of the intangibles to be a 10-year NFL Quarterback, NOBODY else in this class can say that entering on Day 1 in the NFL. However, the ceiling is capped, and to be an evaluator and project for what you know as fact over what is capable of happening with near ideal situations, would be a disservice to the prospect and yourself.

Stroud is the most pro-ready when size is accounted for, but he won't be my QB1 for a multitude of reasons, including upside, ceiling, rush-ability, consistency and aggressiveness on the run/check-down.

Ohio State's ONLY two-time Heisman Trophy finalist. Stroud finished 4th in 2021, and 3rd in 2022 while playing with the likes of Chris Olave, Garrett Wilson, Jaxon Smith-Njigba and Marvin Harrison.

In two seasons as the starter at Ohio State, Stroud finished 21-4 with over 345 passing yards in each of the 4 losses. Ohio State beat Utah in the 2021 Rose Bowl, and gave Georgia the best game of the season in the 2022 National Semi-Final with a narrow 42-41 loss. Georgia would eventually defeat TCU 65-7 in the Championship, so many look at the Ohio State as the defacto National Championship Game. Stroud finished his career in Columbus with 8,123 passing yards and an incredible 8 to 1 touchdown to interception ratio.

Playing for Two former NFL Coordinators has helped Levis understand a pro-stayle offense and what is expected at the NFL level, without maxium talent around him. We ha-ven't even talked about his ability to move on the ground, his tenacious accountability and leadership of the team and praise from teammates touting his work ethic. Levis has ALL of the tools needed to be one of the next Tier-1 Quar-terbacks in the NFL. Entering 2022, Will Levis was regarded as a Top-3 quarterback prospect with upside, playing at Kentucky is different than Ohio State, and Alabama, I don't need to tell you that. But what everyone wanted to see, was an improvement in multiple facets of the game, including completion percentage, rushing, ability to win and elevate, and for Levis to have less heady mistakes and interceptions. He did very little to improve that stock in 2022, while also aquiring a foot injury that caused him to miss the South Carolina game.

Levis has the strongest arm in the 2023 Class, and it will arguably be top-5 in the nfl in the coming season. But there is a ways to go between now and then, if Will is going to be the top pick in the 2023 draft or have a long career in the NFL. Think of Levis like a Patrick Mahomes or Josh Allen as a prospect, Big Prototypical frame, with above average rushing ability, a cannon for an arm, with tendancies to be eratic. He is far from a Trevor Lawrence level prospect, but Levis is as close to a complete quarterback as we currently have in the 2023 class.

Film Notes:

Bryce Young is as good of a talent as you will find at Quarterback, and the respect wouldn't be questioned if he was 6'2 215lbs. Unfortunately he only weighed in at 204lbs, and for those that have seen Young in the flesh, it's not a real 204. If surrounded by a Top 10 offensive line, Young will be allowed to flourish early in his career, but remember, Doug Flutie was 5'10 and 180lbs in 1985, he was drafted in the 11th round of the NFL Draft and if not for a mid-career renaissance in the CFL, you wouldn't know who he was.

As the 2021 Heisman Trophy winner, Young finished with a 23-4 record at Alabama, the 8th winningest QB in school history. Young met all expectations at Alabama, except for winning a national championship as the starting quarterback, he did win one while backing up Mac Jones in 2020.

Bryce accounted for 178 total touchdowns in high school at the legendary Mater Dei, and he chose Alabama over USC, whom he grew up watching. The question with Bryce Young was NEVER about talent, it was always about size - many expect Bryce to be a top-3 pick in the 2023 NFL Draft, but there has been rumors of worried General Managers when discussing a quarterback that may come in south of 190lbs.

Hooker has NFL tendencies but the inability to fully commit on things like shallow passes, selling fakes, or dump offs worries me. He is coming off of an ACL injury late in the season, so the ceiling he showed on the ground is naturally going to regress. He has a great frame for an NFL Quarterback, but feels incomplete (-10lbs)

Progressed immensely from VT to Tennessee, it helps having a deep ball specialist like Jalin Hyatt - but Hyatt is able to stretch Hookers arm to the fullest.

Prior to a Tearing his ACL against South Carolina in November, it was expected that if the Volunteers(9-1) could win out, that Hooker would have a great opportunity at winning the 2022 Heisman Trophy. If Bagent is dropped on a roster behind a veteran like Rodgers, Brady or Geno Smith for 1-2 years it will do wonders.

Extremely quick release, more of a side arm/whip that can naturally make a ball miss high - The arm talent is apparent, but I'd love to see him push the ball a little more - he progresses through reads quick, and will take the dump off or jog for 3 yards if his 1st/2nd read aren't there.

Tanner McKee has had a long, interesting ride to the NFL – In 2017, he competed in the Army All-American Bowl and was an Elite 11 Finalist. After committing to Stanford as a 4-star recruit, McKee spent two years in Brazil on an LDS mission, which is what allowed him to spend 5 years in college, while still being a 3rd year sophomore on paper.

As a Quarterback at Stanford, McKee was unable to elevate the Cardinal offense in 2021 or 2022, finishing outside the Top-100 in scoring in each season. Personal accolades include, efficiency and total numbers falling in 2022 from 65% to 62% and 7.4 yards per attempt, down to 6.9. McKee was a player to watch entering the season, with upside to be a 2nd-3rd round pick in the draft, it is now up for question whether McKee will be drafted on Day 3.

Stetson Bennett has no shortage of awards, trophies, or wins, but the most impressive might just be the Burlsworth Trophy that is given to the Most Outstanding Player that began as a Walk-On. Bennett is just the third Quarterback to win the award since 2015, joining Baker Mayfield and Luke Falk.

Bennett may not have prototypical size, or arm strength, but he has it between the ears and led Georgia to back-to-back National Championships with a 29-1 record in that time. Bennett improved from 55% to 68% over the last three seasons in completion percentage, while keeping his yards per attempt above 9, and a 3 to 1 touchdown to interception ratio.

Duggan is a competent passer, but most of his success will be remembered in College. He lacks true consistency in the passing game. Unnatrual passers, that utilizes multiple arm angles but everyday throws are inaccurate often. Won't be able to pull the ball down to "save" a play as much in the NFL.

He has a Quick, firey release when needed. With ability to get the ball out and use awkward throw angles to get the job done in college.

Duggan has started for four years at TCU, once a 189lb, 4-star prospect from rural Iowa, he broke TCU true freshman passing records with 2,077 yards and 15 touchdowns. Not only was Duggan a competent passer, but he showed off his 4.58 forty yard dash from The Opening in high school, finishing with 555 yards on the ground and 6 scores.

Improving from 53% to 63% passing in two seasons with Gary Patterson as the head coach, was impressive by itself, but Max was still not on NFL evaluators minds entering his 2022 campaign. TCU had finished with 5, 6 and 5 wins in each of those seasons. In 2022, Patterson was let go, and Sonny Dykes brought a perennial top-20 scoring attack from SMU up to TCU. Not only did TCU increase from 28.7(66th) to 38.8(10th) in points per game, but established themselves as a power house in the Big-12, thanks to Duggan and his connection with fellow NFL prospects Quentin Johnston, Derius Davis and Kendre Miller.

Film Notes:

Cunningham lacks the “IT” factor needed in dual-threat passers right now, he will be an exceptional QB in the XFL in 2024, and that is meant with zero disrespect.

Cunningham is a talent, his ability to diagnose defenses in the passing game is not on par with the middle tier of QB’s. He shows flashes of good ball spinning, but all division 1 quarterbacks should be able to spin it – finding consistency and growth is what we shoot for – and through 5 years, Cunningham lacked to grow as a passer.

If it feels like Malik Cunningham has been the starting quarterback at Louisville since Lamar Jackson left in 2017, it’s because he has. Cunningham finished his 5th season at Louisville ranked top-5 in school history in a number of stats. Including Passing touchdowns(70), one ahead of Lamar Jackson, and 3,184 rushing yards(3rd), a whopping 948 shy of Lamar Jackson. Jackson did those things in 3 seasons, Cunningham in 5.

As an overall passer, Cunningham never grew as a dependable efficient passer and got worse in touchdown to interception ratio and yards per attempt throughout his career. Rushing is where Cunningham was able to keep Louisville in games, totalling 50+ rushing yards in 25 of 56 career games.

He added over 400 rushing yards, over 100 rushing attempts, and nearly doubled his receptions compared to his freshman season. In the 2022 season, the Texas Longhorns fell short of expectations, but Bijan did not. He achieved college career highs in attempts (258), rushing yards (1,580), rushing touchdowns (18), and receiving yards (314). Evans will profile as a late round pick, but in the right offense he will have a lucious career, as a change of pace type. With James Robinson type upside.

Never carried the load in college at Louisville or Tennessee or Hutchinson CC (538, 525, and 525) each of 3 seasons. But he carries a massilve middle frame... torso/upper legs/butt with Quick Feet, and good acceleration. Teams that do their due diligence will come away with the next great sleeper, with Evans.

Tiyon Evans started his collegiate career at Hutchinson Community College in 2018. As freshman, Evans rushed for 538 yards and averaged 8.8 yards per carry. He also caught 4 passes for 43 yards a score. The following JUCO season was cancelled due to Covid. Tiyon Evans entered the transfer portal and ended up on the Tennessee Volunteers roster for the 2021 season. Even though Evans was hampered by injuries, he managed to rush 81 times for 525 yards and caught 4 passes for 74 yards. Before the season ended, Tiyon Evans announced he was entering the transfer portal. Evans emerged from the portal as the starting running back for the Louisville Cardinals. Technically still a junior, Tiyon Evans rushed 83 times for 525 yards before declaring for the draft.

The ability to command the ball out of the backfield combined with above average to good speed and burst is going to make Hull a popular name to monitor come NFL Draft time. In 2022, he caught 55 passes out of the backfield.

His College Target Share ranks in the 96-percentile amongst running backs. Hull also possesses good size for this ability. We can rest assured that his 5-10, 29-pound frame will be able to hold up in the NFL. After all, he is coming off back to back 12 game seasons in college. If he stayed healthy in college, he has a good chance to stay on the field in the NFL.

For Deuce Vaughn, football is in his DNA. Vaughn's father coached college football and his family moved frequently. Deuce Vaughn's family settled in Round Rock, Texas where he attended Cedar Ridge High School. During his senior season, he broke the single season rushing record. As a 3-star prospect, he received offers to schools like Missouri and Arkansas before ultimately attending Kansas State.

Deuce Vaughn started as a freshman and topped over 100 rushing yards 3 times through his first year. His excellence as a kick returner also garnered more work for him out of the backfield. Vaughn was named the Big 12 Conference Offensive Player of the Year. In his sophomore campaign, he improved on his stellar freshman year as he rushed over 100 yards 9 of the 13 games he played. His highlights from that season include an absolute smackdown of Kansas, where he averaged 14.7 YPC on only 11 carries. Vaughn showed no signs of stopping in 2022 as he posted another 9 games in which he had over 100 rushing yards. While his final season numbers didn't match his 2021 college career highs, it was enough to win Kansas State a Big 12 Conference title.

Unfortunately, the following season he suffered a knee injury which knocked him out for the entire season.

He hit career highs the following season, putting up 1,124 rushing yards and 12 touchdowns. While not as efficient as his first year, he maintained a respectable 6.7 yards per carry. Not bad for an unranked prospect. He followed up that display with another solid year. Camerun Peoples ran for 926 yards and 14 touchdowns. Kenny McIntosh is a former 4-star recruit who was a part of the 2019 Georgia Bulldog recruiting class. McIntosh is an interesting case. He didn't perform well at the NFL Combine, as he turned in a 4.62 40-yard dash which no doubt hurt his draft stock. However, this is a running back who was able to put up some impressive numbers while playing at Georgia. What stands out to me is College Target Share of 10.9-per-cent which ranks McIntosh in the 79th-percentile amongst running backs.

On the surface, this may not seem like much, but when the fact that McIntosh played against the top teams in the SEC and still was able to produce, that has to count for something. McIntosh caught 43 passes for 504 receiving yards in his final season at Georgia. NFL teams will have to take a hard look at McIntosh.

Lew Nichols III is from Detroit Michigan. So it's no surprise he stuck near his hometown and committed to Central Michigan University after earning all-state honors in high school. As a Chippewa, he redshirted his freshman season and had limited work in 4 games. The 2020 season was Nichols "arrival" to the MAC. He carried the ball 78 times for 505 yards and added another 109 yards from receptions. Lew Nichols III became THE guy in Jim McElwain's system. In 2021, Nichols lead all of college football in rushing attempts (341) and rushing yards (1,848). He also added 10 rushing touchdowns. Through the air he caught 40 passes for 338 yards and 2 TDs.

The following season Nichols suffered injuries that hampered his bounce back to the previous years' numbers. He rushed 177 times for 601 yards and 6 TDs with another 21 receptions for 128 yards.

Marvin Mims was a consensus four-star prospect and the Texas high school state record holder for career receiving yards (5485) and in a season (2629). He committed to Oklahoma as a member of their 2020 recruiting class.

Mims immediately became their No. 1 receiver in his first season in receptions (37), yards (610), and touchdowns (9) on a Sooners team that just lost CeeDee Lamb to the NFL Draft. The following season saw instability at the quarterback position as Spencer Rattler lost his starting job, but Mims again led Oklahoma in receiving yards (705). In his final season in 2022, Mims eclipsed the 1000-yard mark and averaged over 20.0 yards per reception en route to being named to the First-Team All-Big 12.

247 Sports ranked Josh Downs as a top-100 prospect entering college, where he committed to North Carolina. Downs played as a true freshman in a limited role. In four games, he caught seven passes for 19 yards and three touchdowns on an offense that featured Javonte Williams and Michael Carter catching passes out of the backfield and 2021 NFL Draft picks Dyami Brown and Dazz Newsome playing at wide receiver.

With all four of the aforementioned players departed from North Carolina the following season, Downs emerged as the alpha receiver in the offense. He caught 101 passes for 1335 yards and 8 touchdowns. The rest of the North Carolina offense combined for 136 receptions. The following season saw Downs put up a second-consecutive 1000 yard season with 11 receiving touchdowns. He ends his three-year career at North Carolina as a two-time First-Team All-ACC player.

A.T. Perry was a three-star recruit entering college, where he joined Wake Forest in 2018. He redshirted in 2018 and was a minor contributor in 2019 (four receptions, 62 yards, one touchdown in three games) while future NFL wide receiver Kendall Hinton led the team with receiving. Five of the six leading receivers from the 2019 squad were gone the next season, leading to Perry moving up the depth chart.

In 2021, the 6-5, 206 lb receiver took a massive leap, leading the team with 71 receptions, 1293 yards, and 15 touchdowns. For an encore performance, he returned in 2022 and put up 81 receptions for 1096 yards and 11 touchdowns. 2021 saw Perry make the 2021 All-ACC First Team and finish as a semifinalist for the Biletnikoff Award. He's currently on the watch list for the 2022 Biletnikoff and Maxwell Awards.

After barely playing as a freshman, he led Hutchinson in receiving with 47 receptions for 556 yards, doubling the next leading receiver. After Hutchinson, Tinsley found his next home at Western Kentucky for the 2020 season, where he led the team in all receiving stats.

2021 saw Western Kentucky jump from the 115th-ranked scoring offense to the 2nd-ranked scoring offense and Tinsley finished with a video game stat line of 87-1402-14, which did NOT lead the team in any of those categories. With a final season of eligibility, Tinsley transferred to Penn State to play against top competition. His 51 receptions and five touchdowns led Penn State, while his 577 receiving yards were right behind Parker Washington's 611.

The 6-4 232 pound Michael Mayer was recruited as a five-star recruit, and the No. 32 recruit in the nation, as a member of the University of Notre Dame's 2020 recruiting class. During his time at Notre Dame, Mayer added size and strength. Currently, Mayer is listed at 6-4 1/2 and 265 pounds. He is from Independence, Kentucky and played his high school football at Covington Catholic.

In 2022, Mayer played in 12 games, caught 67 passes for 809 yards, averaged 12.1 yards per catch, and scored nine touchdowns. In 2021, Mayer started 12 games, caught 71 passes for 840 yards and hauled in seven touchdowns while averaging 11.8 yards per catch. In 2020 Mayer recorded over 400 receiving yards and two touchdowns.

Needless to say, Mayer proved to be one of the most productive tight ends in college football during his time at Notre Dame. He never played a season where he put up less than 400 receiving yards, and he put up back to back 800 yard receiving seasons. Needless to say, many will argue that Michael Mayer is the best tight end in the 2023 NFL Draft class.

Ben Sims is a tight end from Baylor that leads the Bears in all-time TDs by a TE with 12. Sims's 78 receptions are second all time by a Baylor TE. A 3-star recruit ranked as the #28 TE in the nation by ESPN, Ben Sims was active for three games but recorded no stats before redshirting. Sims returned as a RS Freshman in 2019 dressing for 8 games and recording 2 receptions for 5 yards before suffering a season ending injury.

Sims became a started as a RS Sophomore in 2020, starting all six games he played in, tying for the team-lead with 3 touchdowns. Ben Sims had his best season as a Junior in 2021, earning a Big-12 Honorable Mention with 31 receptions for 261 yards and 6 TDs. In his final year he'd pick up Second-Team All-Texas honors with 3 TDs and 255 yards on 31 grabs. Ben Sims leaves Waco as a 7-time member of the Big-12 Commissioner's Honor Role.
